

David M. Crowe

David M. Crowe is the President of Rockfish Realty LLC, a company that owns and manages working farms in the Piedmont region of Virginia. He recently retired from Lehman Brothers Inc., where he ran a global strategic finance business in London and New York from 2000 to 2004. Prior to joining Lehman Brothers he was a Managing Director at Bankers Trust Company in London from 1992 to 2000 where he held a similar position.

Before entering investment banking, he was a partner at the law firm of Caplin and Drysdale in Washington, DC and served as Associate International Tax Counsel at the US Treasury Department in Washington. He holds degrees from the University of Virginia (BA 1975), the London School of Economics (MSc. 1977) and Yale University (JD/MBA) 1981. He is on the Board of Directors of the Piedmont Environmental Council and the Virginia League of Conservation Voters and is a trustee of the College Foundation at the University of Virginia.