

San Francisco Affirmative Litigation Project Fellowship

The Yale Law School's San Francisco Affirmative Litigation Project (SFALP) and Robert M. Cover Fellowship Program offer a post-graduate fellowship for lawyers who are interested in a long-term career in law school clinical teaching or public lawyering. The Fellowship starts during the summer and lasts for one year, with a stipend of about $44,000 per year plus health benefits. One new SFALP Cover Fellow is selected each year. Fellowship responsibilities include running the San Francisco Affirmative Litigation Project at Yale Law School, co-teaching a seminar on local government law with Yale Law School Professor Heather Gerken, supervising student work, and working directly with the San Francisco City Attorney's Affirmative Litigation Task Force on related litigation.

Applicants should send a resume, a letter making the case for your candidacy, contact information for three references, and a writing sample to Professor Heather Gerken, 127 Wall Street, New Haven, CT 06511. Applications for the fellowship commencing over the summer must be received by September 1 of the previous year.
